

Anyone can water a plant, but not anyone knows exactly how much water to add to each individual plant, according to its plant species. For instance, we all assume that houseplants need weekly watering and also need to be by a window. Well, that may be the case for some particular plants, but not all plants will fit into the same box! The water will depend on the plant size, plant specie, and location of the plant. The best way to test out a plant is by checking the top layer of soil, plain and simple. You need to know when it's too dry and just a little bit dry. Saying hello here and there will also put a smile on your plant! - The Plant Lady
